

CLX Logistics Managed Services: Save Time, Reduce Costs, and Enhance Global Supply Chain Efficiency

With today's rapidly evolving chemical supply chain landscape, chemical companies need to consider the core competencies of their managed service providers, now more than ever. The right global 4PL has a combination of a core focus on chemical logistics, along with the right experience and capabilities to maximize your transportation spend and drive new cost-saving initiatives throughout your supply chain.

Ask Yourself:

- Is chemical logistics a core competency of your managed services?
- Is the right technology in place to ensure all freight is optimized, automated, and competitive?
- Who controls continuous improvement and cost savings activities?
- What continuous improvement projects are active or awaiting resourcing?
- Does your logistics provider have the ability to set baselines and track savings?
- Do resources have the time and freedom to focus on critical initiatives?
- Does your logistics provider rely on manual processes for supply chain visibility?
- How do you evaluate core carriers and benchmark their rates?
- Is global chemical logistics a core competency of your provider's organization?
